Dear Bud.

Here is a copy of the Washington Post story on the Department of Justice blinking wen we had thom cyclebell-to-eyelell for Jense Earl when you see him. I do not know whather you were in town when the story speered.

There is a carbon of anis noise for him. I think I have discovered snother large and important lie in the federal statements. Rether than say what it is and twareby direct your tainking and his, let me instead suggest that you sak him to tell us every letter he wrote to every government official, of any government, any unit.

If he has copies, then we should examine them. If he doesn't, perhaps he can recell what he said or saked or both.

The one clue I think cannot influence either of you and may encourage him just a bit is that if my suppicion is correct, then this relates very much to the conscious and deliberate denial of his rights.

Now that he has read my work, if he'd care to call to my attention enything he regards as a safor error or any ereas in which he thinks I might do more work, I'd like to hear about it.

Sincerely.

Harold Weisberg
